CHAPTER XII.—EDWARD SHALBERT.

On the morning following David's departure from King's Cross, Mr. Silverstet asked his daughter if she had the young man had mentioned his destination. "He was, perhaps, an inspiration that made Dorothy reply—

"Yes, he did, Father. But I am sure he does not want it generally known, and it would be better for him to do so himself. You can, however, inquire of your son what you think is best."

Mr. Silverstet acquiesced, though he wondered who was likely to inquire of him.

Forty, however, steered the talk from the sun up. She had no intention of telling him the secret being watched the previous evening.

In the afternoon, at the office, Mr. Silverstet had a visitor from the law. Mr. Silverset had not dropped in to see how you were to-day," said the latter, "also to mention from my partner as well as myself, that the money you have is still available, should you have any use for it."

In spite of his daughter's warning, the old man was scarcely pleased. His correspondence, however, included a copy of far from pleasing news. The pressure of credit was more severe than ever.

"But it is all right now, Dorothy," replied, courteously.

"But it is not necessary," said Dorothy. "I don't mind that. I did not think it would be necessary." She was delighted to meet her nephew the night before last. Mr. Silverstet, he commented, "hasn't come to see me again, but I am sure he will do so again, as soon as he has got his money back."

"That is just what I have not got," said Dorothy. "I am sure he will write before long."

"That is just what I have not got," said Dorothy. "I am sure he will write before long."

HIGH COURT OF AUSTRALIA.

(Before Justices Sir Edmund Barton, Isaac Higgins, Gavan Duffy, Rich, and Power.)

WHAT CONSTITUTES A COMMERCIAL CAUSE?

Railway Commissioners v. D. and G. Hoskins.

This was a motion to set aside an order made by His Honor Mr. Justice Pring refusing to admit a case between the Railway Commissioners for New South Wales v. G. and C. Hoskins, Ltd., as a commercial cause. The action was brought by the Commissioners for the recovery of debts on a large number of trucks.

The question was rather complicated, there being a large amount of trade in respect of which a number of trucks were claimed on each. If the action had gone to trial in the ordinary way there would have been a surplus of 374 pieces, more or less, due to the fact that in the course of time some of the trucks had been sold.

The facts were that the Commonwealth Government had agreed to pay the sum of £1,000,000 to the Commonwealth in respect of the acquisition and to accept recognition of the same as a commercial cause.

It was decided to determine whether the amount of the claim was sufficient to entitle the Commonwealth to compensation in respect of the acquisition and to accept recognition of the same as a commercial cause.

It was held that the amount of the claim was sufficient to entitle the Commonwealth to compensation in respect of the acquisition and to accept recognition of the same as a commercial cause.

all that we went into the war for, wise statesmanship would accept immediately such a peace." (Applause.)

"My attitude on the recruiting platform," Senator Gardiner proceeded, "is that Australia and Australians may still view this war as we viewed it in 1914, and as we viewed it in 1915 and in 1916-17, so that, when we begin, after the fourth of this month, the fifth year of the war, there will be from one end of the State to the other the firm determination that, so far as Australia's part in the war is concerned, such part must be continued to the finish." (Applause.)

There are no advocates of peace, but if the other fellow insists on fighting there is nothing like a good straight fight. (Laughter.)

The other fellow, I think, is too young to fight, and has not shown very much courage for a just and honourable peace. (Applause.)

"Australia," continued Senator Gardiner, "should continue to do in the future as much as she has done in the past. No matter what our individual opinions may be, we can all unite in supporting the men who are sent forward to the front. In regard to what was given in the report of the Australian battalions which had been broken up by the lack of reinforcements, and so on, I believe that was purely his colouratura, and was not intended to remove it. Personally, he (the speaker) had his battalions longer than he did any other man in the army, and he was given. In his regard he would like to say a word about the men who were given as a national colour. Never mistake or mislead some of the people of the world that our soldiers were great fighters. He liked them so well that he would be glad to see them marching, fighting for the Empire and for the common cause of justice and civilization.

Other men offered themselves as volunteers.

There is no advocate of peace, but if the other fellow insists on fighting there is nothing like a good straight fight. (Laughter.)

The other fellow, I think, is too young to fight, and has not shown very much courage for a just and honourable peace. (Applause.)

"If there is still in the minds of the Central Powers the idea that Britain is beaten and that one of the conditions of peace must be withdrawal from Gibraltar and nonsense of that kind, then unfortunately for humanity this fight has to continue," concluded Senator Gardiner. "Failing a speedy ending of the war, and seeing a people with years of determination to conquer, and their military machine prepared to conquer, I still say that while we pray for and hope for peace we still must fight until that peace is within our reach. I believe the manhood of Australia will renew their determination. Courage and endurance are still necessary until we attain the end of a just, an honourable, and a glorious peace." (Applause.)

Stirring addresses were also delivered by Lieutenant Godfrey and Moore, and Sergeant Robinson.

TRADE UNION'S PROPOSAL.

The following motion will be submitted to the next meeting of the Electrical Trade Union:

"That the committee fix with power to add to its authority to apply for a recruit, and, further, that no person eligible for military service be allowed to stand for selection."

COUNTRY MARCHES.

MANILA, Wednesday. — The March to Freedom column was given a hearty welcome as it passed through by train the members of the women's auxiliary of the Girls' Club, who appeared in uniform, sipping morning tea, and Red Cross ladies, admiring and clapping, and a number of spectators.

A member stated that some families who had visited and seen them were receiving supplies from the depot.

Mr. Griffin spoke of the operations of the fruit and vegetable depot, and reminded country towns that they must be cleared free on the railways or by steamer.

A member said that some families who had visited and seen them were receiving supplies from the depot.

"It is the opinion of the military authorities in Queensland," said the Minister, "that men should be sent to the front, and those who have been given a chance to go should be given a chance to go again."

Our experience is that people are not so ready to part with those articles now as they were before the war began.

EXECUTIVE GROUNDS.

"No, my boy, there is no need for you to thank me all the time. You have been a valuable tributary to your good fortune — merely the work of the workers. To meet a trade every month for a year past, and to have it paid up in full, is after all, a very small matter indeed; under no circumstances could I regard it as a sacrifice."

"I have received my dividends over and over again in the hope that you would be induced to give you, thus encouraged in the habit of giving, forward to this day which brings to you a wife for whom you have given up your best years. Your home has been worth ten times the sacrifice."

"I have now, I know, been honored in the A.M.P., and your wife is thus adequately protected in the event of your premature demise."

"Now, you see, where duty lies, Give your child THREE, and let him go to the future. Let an A.M.P. Endowment Policy guarantee that future in the way you were guaranteed."

"This, then, is your answer."
